Man dies from injury he suffered in assault

Hancock County deputies still searching for Jacob's attacker

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS Publisher Emeritus

A Shoreline Park man died Saturday from injuries he sustained from an assault a week before, according to Hancock Sheriff County Steve Garber.

"Larry M. Jacob, 47, died during the evening hours of May 24. Investigators say that on May 17, at approximately 2:45 a.m., Deputy Mike Casano responded to a report of an assault at 11053 North Shore Drive in Shoreline Park. Upon arriving at the residence Casano and rescue personnel found Jacob semi-conscious and suffering from a head wound," Garber's report

Carl Lamar Brown, 29, has been identified as a suspect in Jacob's death and investigators are requesting anyone having information on the crime, or the whereabouts of Brown to contact the sheriff's office at 467-5101, Garber said.

"Jacob was initially transported by ambulance

Troubled waters in Clermont Harbor

Residents take issue with company

BY SHANNON JENKINS Staff Writer

Drinking water from the tap is not an option for several residents in Clermont Harbor.

Most of the time they don't even use their water for cooking. They do use their water for washing clothes and bathing, but they're not happy about it.

These residents claim their water company, Total Environmental Solutions Inc. (TESI), does not provide quality water.

Federal agency to test DuPont air emissions

Is the DuPont DeLisle Plant polluting area groundwater? Not by way of their deep well injections, says the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry in a report released earlier this spring. At present, more than 2,000 area residents are involved in a lawsuit against the plant alleging serious long-term ill health effects due to contamination resulting from disposal of toxic waste products from the plant.

Many area residents and lawyers involved in the suit against the plant say they are skeptical of the agency's integrity, that they have been sent to do nothing more than diffuse an explosive situation.

As a result of that distrust, many people chose to stay home during initial health consultations held last fall. The agency hopes that will change.

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Hope Haven Children's Shelter received a $500 donation from Kenny Bilbo Productions and Champion Dodge on Wednesday. The two were sponsors of the Motocross competition held recently at the Hancock County Equine Facility and Livestock Arena, which raised the money in a 50/50 raffle.

One raffle winner, Jake Cospelich, donated his entire $122 winnings, Bilbo

The center also received a $500 donation from Annunciation Men's Club, said director Terry Latham. Since media attention alerted the public of the center's plight with dwindling donations, the center has received about $7,500 in donations, said Latham, many from people who have never given before.

"We are still down about half in the amount of individual, small donations," Latham said. "But we appreciate the help we have received."

Active hurricane season being predicted this year

BY JOHN PAIN Associated Press Writer (AP)

forecasters Government predicted a busier-than-normal Atlantic hurricane season Monday: Six to nine hurricanes overall, including two to four major storms packing winds of at least 111 mph.

Higher-than-normal ocean temperatures and other factors should make conditions ripe for hurricanes this year, said James Mahoney, deputy administrator of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Forecasters also said there is a 70 percent chance that La Nina will develop this summer. The weather phenomenon of lower-thannormal Pacific Ocean temperatures near the equator typically leads to more hurricane activity.

Overall, 11 to 15 tropical storms are expected develop during the season that runs from June 1 to Nov. 30; the historical average is 10 tropical storms and six hurricanes.

Last year, there were 12 tropical storms and four hurricanes.

Since 1995, forecasters have noted an increase in overall tropical storm and hurricane activity. Officials are warning residents to be prepared.

We may have gotten lazy and lackadaisical in our preparedness for hurricanes, get over it," said Mike Brown, director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. The government will populated coastal areas. It will also be helpful for those who need more than three days to move themselves and their property, such as the Navy.

Hurricane forecaster William Gray updated his 2003 prediction last month to say there would be eight hurricanes, three of them The Weather severe. Research Center predicts six hurricanes this year. The storm names for the

Radio 'behemoth' buys up large chunk of stations around Mississippi

Americans ize it, but control and ownership of the nation's broadcast media is being consolidated in the hands of a few powerful radio and TV mega-companies.

It started with enactment of the Telecommunications

Act and is now about Federal Communications Commission.

Already Mississippi, though not considered a prime commercial broadcast media market, has seen the largest radio behemoth in the nation buy up a huge chunk of stations around rules,

Bush While the Administration has not been directly identified behind the FCC media power grab, there are certhe tain linkages which suggest administration backing.

One is that the commission has a three to two Republican majority. And as it turns out, Michael Powell, the son of Colin Powell, is the FCC chairman and is the strongest proponent behind the proposal for more media consolidation. Under the Telecommunications Act--a measure U.S. Rep. Chip Pickering had boasted as having helped to draft while he was a Senate staffer--the FCC has opened the gates to monopolization of local radio, the prime source of news or opinion for a great many Americans.

Pickering and his thenemployer, U.S. Sen. Trent Lott, had hailed the 1996 act as a deregulatory measure. One of its strongest backers down here was then-WorldCom Bernie Ebbers, who utilized the new law to further extend WorldCom holdings. And while most attention was then focused on its long distance implications, little attention was given to radio station mergers.

Since the 1996 act was passed, the FCC has lifted its cap of 40 radio stations that any one broadcasting company could own and permitted multiple ownerships. As a result, three companies now own half the radio stations in America.

The single biggest company is Clear Channel Communications, based in San Antonio, which now owns 1.240 radio stations around the country.

Waveland woman concerned. about officer's involvement in recent 'bar room brawl'

Dear Editor:

I write to you concerning the recent incident in which yet another Waveland police officer was involved in a "bar room brawl.'

I am filled with much disappointment and concern regarding this most recent display of poor judgment.

Let me precede my statements by saying that I feel that the Waveland Police Department provides efficient, effective, and professional services on the daily

The citizens of Waveland should feel confident that they are being protected and served by one of the finest police agencies on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

However, with this most recent episode of inappropriate and inconsiderate decision making on the part of one police officer, I find myself asking the all too important question, "Did he not learn from the mistakes of his peers?'

Obviously not, as the involved officer displayed no concern for the effects that his decisions would have on his peers or department as a whole. With no regard for others, this officer chose to blemish the reputation of Waveland Department. I encourage the citizens of Waveland to hold accountable the one bad cop that has acted irresponsibly and unprofessionally, not the entire department or staff. Please do not blame the fine men and women of Waveland the Police Department simply because one officer goes astray.

Consider contacting your police chief to voice your opinions. He can be reached at 467-3669.

Swindle a good choice for Bay High principal

Dear Editor:

This letter is being written in response to a recent article in the Sea Coast Echo concerning the appointment of Mrs. Marca Boyer Swindle as the new Principal of Bay High School.

It is our opinion the Bay-Waveland School Board could not have chosen a better person for this position. Mrs. Swindle has a proven record of leadership as a principal, having held this position at Second Street Elementary for several years. She is a very caring a concerned individual whose greatest concern is the well-being of the students. She is a strict disciplinarian, yet fair, with students. We believe she will be a tremendous addition to the staff at Bay High for many years to

Since the FCC allowed monopolization of radio ownership around the country, local news coverage by stations has sharply shrunk, and they have aded a heavier dose of nationally syndicated, mostly right-wing, commentators. Plus, listeners are being fed a largely homogenized diet of musical offerings.

Many critics have focused on the power that Clear Channel and other big radio chains hold over recording companies and artists. The latter subject that has brought a hefty lawsuit against Clear Channel from recording artists. Evidently, many Clear

Most of the pro-war rallies around the country, several media critics have reported, were organized by Clear Channel outlets, coordinated under the name Rally for America.

Mary (Izzy) Coster has announced her candidacy for Constable, Place Two in the August Democratic primary.

Coster is a graduate of North Caddo High School, Vivian, LA, and in 1997 received a Certificate from the Harrison County Reserve Police Academy. She served 12 years in the U.S. Air Force. She is the mother of a son and daughter.

She said, "Law enforcement is something I enjoy doing and Hancock County is where I want to be. I currently work with the city of Bay St. Louis, as a Reserve Police Officer, and I thoroughly enjoy working the school events.

"I am starting my seventh year with them, so, I've seen a lot of kids grow up and overall it's a joy to work with them. In addition, I've been work-

Hoffman and his wife have opted to use filters for their icemaker and buy water for consumption.

He once had a filter for his sink, but said he took it off because he had to replace it so often. Hoffman said the filters kept getting contaminated.

Consumption-wise, Hoffman spends about $35 a month buying water from Abita Springs.

With the water quality aside, Hoffman complained about his water pressure as

"Sometimes the dish washer doesn't work because the water pressure is so low," he said.

Other problems include system breakdowns and higher water bills.

"I'd say we have break-1965 and began living there downs a minimum of 15 times per year," Hoffman said. "It usually takes anywhere from two hours to half a day to get the system every load of clothes," he running again.

Before TESI took over the water system from Johnson Utility in December 2000, Hoffman said the water bill was $15 per month. Now, his bill is $19.80 per month.

Hoffman, however, claims TESI has cost him more than just a few extra dollars a month.

About a year ago, Hoffman filed a claim against TESI in civil court for the six Japanese Butterfly Koi that died after he filled his goldfish pond with water. He refilled his pond every six to eight months, and this was the first time any of his fish haddied because of the water.

He suspected that TESI had put chlorine in the water.

Hoffman asked for approximately $575 to replace his fish, which he said can sometimes sell for about $200 a piece.

Steve Johnson, the mancompany in court. He informed the judge that TESI is not required to notify customers of the addition of any common methods of disinfection other than the water quality pamphlet sent out yearly per the State Mississippi Department of Health (MSDH) requirements.

"In Clermont Harbor, (TESI) uses chlorine to disinfect the system," Johnson told The Sea Coast Echo. "Until TESI took over, the residents did not have the benefit of disinfection systems for their water."

The judge ruled in favor of TESI. Although Hoffman did not get reimbursed for his fish, he does expect TESI to be more consistent with water pressure and purification. Roland Flick, who lives across the street from Hoffman, would like to see improvements as well.

'We can't cook with our water," said Flick, who also became a full-time resident about 10 years ago. "We can't drink it. We're paying more money and not getting better water."

Flick said the water bill ager of Mississippi Facilities increase wasn't much, but for TESI, represented the when combined with other bills, costs begin to stack up. Both Hoffman and Flick also complained about often having "Boil Water" advisories.

"We can approach (these problems) realistically,' Flick said. "Give us quality water."

Johnson, TESI's representative, said the company is attempting to do just

"TESI has invested over $250,000 in the Clermont Harbor system and continues to work to improve a system that was previously on the verge of complete failure," he said. "We will continue to improve this system and maintain it properly and in accordance with all MSDH and Public Service Commission guidelines."

In response to Hoffman and Flick's issues with the water quality, Johnson said the "system has been difficult to keep in balance because the existing wells had a hard time keeping up with demand."

"Naturally, this would become even worse during a line break or well component failure," he said. "The new well should dramatical-well, which is located on Long Street, should alleviate many problems once brought on-line in about two to three weeks. The poor water pressure, he said, should also improve from the new well.

As for system breakdowns, Johnson said they can mean different things.

"It can be as simple as a break in a main or as complicated as a failure of a well component," he said.

Johnson said a system failure can result in the need for "Boil Water" advisory, but not in every case. "

"The key factor is how low the pressure falls within the system," he said. "We strictly follow MSDH guidelines in the issuance of advisories."

Another concern the Clermont Harbor residents addressed were the system's flush valves. They claim they rarely see TESI officials flushing the system.

Johnson said the system is flushed weekly because it is not completely looped.

"Flush valves are used to keep proper circulation in systems which may not be throughout the system." With the concerns about flush valves and water quality, residents also are wary about TESI installing meters in the near future. Johnson said meters will be installed for all TESI's customers water Mississippi per MSDH and PSC requirements.

"Customers will be switched to the new metered rates once all meters have been installed in the area and all major upgrades required by our regulators have been completed," he said.

Like Flick, Hoffman continues to be displeased with the water company and the prospect of meters.

"They've got us," Hoffman said. "What can we do?"

for laying out the results of a health consultation is not to convince the public that they are wrong in their beliefs, but merely to lay out the results of an investigation based on the data the agency has. And to ask for more data if it is available, Durant said.

The agency is not saying that the report released on deep well injections is all there is to say, said Durant. The agency is also looking at air emissions and dioxin emissions as a possible cause of problems.

"If you guys tell us that there is a high number of conclusive studies to prove this."

For the groundwater studies, the agency used data from three sources, Durant said, the DuPont DeLisle Plant's own data, Department of Health data and individual data.

· DuPont officials have publicly said that the plant is doing nothing that is illegal or improper, or would in any way endanger the people or environment of the DeLisle area.

To prove scientifically that a suspected source of contamination is the culprit, data must establish an exposure pathway which contains five basic elements, agency policy says: A illnesses, we believe you," he source of the chemical; a route of exposure; and a per-Waveland Elementary is a Reading is Fundamental (R.I.F.) school. Every child in our school received four free R.I.F; in addition, those that obtained their goal in Accelerated Reader received a book. The first two distributions, held in November and February, allowed all children to select one book and the last distribution, held in April, allowed all the children to select two R.I.F. books. "Waveland Elementary is very fortunate to be a part of this program and hopes to continue next year," according to school Principal Rebecca McCaleb. "Our students need to read and read well, this program allows us to obtain our goal. The 2002-2003 school year saw 1,608 books go out to children in our community. "Is it my fault my son has an emotional problem?"

Parents and families often have this worry and wonder. Emotional problems, like all medical illness in children, can be caused by many factors. The more common causes are underlying biological processes that affect a child's temper or mood. Infection or hormone disturbances can cause emotional disturbances as well. Stress in the child's environment needs to be considered. Even the best intentions by parents can sometimes inadvertently worsen a child's depression, anger or anxiety. We're glad to send you more information; or if you think your child might be suffering, call us now or anytime. We always have a counselor standing by to help.

National Dance Institute coming to coast for fifth year

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Division Education and Psychology the Division of Continuing Education at. The University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Coast are collaborating to bring from instructors the National Dance Institute (NDI) in New York to the Coast this summer.

"Do You Want to Dance," a two-week dance residency for students in grades four through seven, will be offered June 23-July 3 at the Bay St. Louis High School Auditorium in Bay St. Louis.

"This summer will be our fifth year to have the National Dance Institute on the Gulf Coast," said Dr. Nancy Masztal, professor of education. "To celebrate our fifth year, we will host a reunion for all children and graduate students who have previously participated in this outstanding event."

The reunion will be held July 3 during the dance residency's gala performance and will be held at the Bay to the first 50 students who High School Auditorium, Bay St. Louis.

The NDI summer dance residency provides access to the arts for children. It is an opportunity for racially diverse middle-grades children, regardless of socioeconomic status or prior dance experience, to receive free dance instruction for a twoweek period from master teachers of dance on the Gulf Coast.

Registration for the camp is $50 per person. It is open register. The daily hours of the two-week camp are from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

Along with the middle grades children, NDI will continue to collaborate with Southern Miss Gulf Coast faculty and graduate students for the class "Maximizing Performance: A philosophies used by the founder of NDI, Jacques d' Amboise, recipient of the Congressional Arts Medal Kennedy Center

"I am thrilled announce that Jacques d' Amboise will be with us this year to work with the children and be a guest speaker in the graduate class," said Masztal. "Jacques has such charisma and knowledge the graduate students get such a different perspective on teaching, learning and life through their opportunity to listen and interact with him." This educational opportunity is supported by the Mississippi Commission, the John S. and James L. Knight. Foundation, the National Endowment of the Arts, the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District and Southern Miss Gulf Coast.

To RSVP for the reunion, to register for dance residency, or for more information, call the Southern Miss Gulf Coast division of Continuing Education at 228-867-8777.

First minivan rolls off assemply line at new $1.4 billion Nissan plant Tuesday in Canton

BY BARBARA POWELL ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

CANTON, Miss. (AP) Nissan Motor Co.'s $1.4 billion investment in an assembly plant Mississippi came amid high enthusiasm among local officials, company President Carlos Ghosn said Tuesday as production began.

Ghosn told reporters on hand for the opening of the plant, Nissan's first new U.S. plant since 1983, that for Nissan the timing was essential and the 2000 announcement of a site came after executives were sure of success with the automaker's revival plan.

We wanted a state where we would have strong support from the community," Ghosn said, ``where the work force would be abundant, where there was good infrastructure and if we wanted to expand it would be no problem."

More than 300 Nissan executives were on hand, along with Mississippi elected officials and hoards of international media, to watch the first 2004 Nissan Quest minivan roll off the assembly line.

Ghosn said Gov. Ronnie Musgrove and the state's congressional delegation proved to be enthusiastic boosters of Mississippi.

He said they were "all motivated and we felt like this would not be a case of enthusiastic reception."

Alongside Ghosn and Musgrove, other dignitaries led by U.S. Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., watched as the Quest bursts through a paper barrier, the first tangible product of more than two years of construction on the 3.5 million-square-foot plant.

Mississippians are rolling out a big down-home welcome for the Japanese automaker.

The night before the Infinity version; and the opening, Ghosn and other Altima sedan. Nissan executives were served grilled chicken and steak on the lawn of the Governor's Mansion. Tuesday, they and other invited guests were offered smoked pork butt sandwiches, potato salad, baked beans, sweet tea and apple cobbler, and some homegrown Mississippi music

Also on hand were more than two dozen Nissan suppliers who will serve the plant, as well as the 1,950 plant employees hired so far. The assembly plant, when it reaches its full production capacity in 2004 of 400,000 vehicles a year, will have as many as 5,300

The plant will make Quest minivans; Nissan's first full-size truck, the Titan; its first full-size sport utility vehicles, the Nissan Pathfinder Armada and an workers.

After months of scberly talking up the much-needed economic boost the Nissan plant will give to the state, Mississippi officials can't stop smiling. After all, this will be the state's first auto assembly plant, and it will be one of the nation's largest in size and production capacity.

No doubt we'll be bragging all over the place. We've already done a lot of that," said Robert Rohrlack, executive director of the Mississippi Development Authority, which negotiated for the state to lure Nissan. `Everybody will be a little giddy.'

State officials consider the $363 million in direct incentives they gave Nissan to be a fair trade off for creating much-needed manufacturing jobs, and for showing other corporations what Mississippi can do.

``When the Nissan facility opens Tuesday, the world will be watching, and they will see what can be done in Mississippi," Musgrove

Just a few miles up the road from the plant, the town of Canton, population 12,911, is putting on its own celebration: Three nights of food and music, hot air balloons, face painting and displays of Nissan vehicles, past, present and future.

"This is our way to welcome Nissan to be a part of our community, to show we're glad Nissan chose Canton to be their home," Canton Mayor Fred Esco Looking wins 3 national awards

Department of Marine Resources (DMR) received three national awards at annual National Association of Government (NAGC) Communicators Communications School held recently in New Orleans.

The DMR is one of just 60 government agencies in the United States to earn the prestigious Blue Pencil Award at this year's annual NAGC Blue Pencil/Gold Screen Awards banquet, which recognizes excellence written, in audio/videotaped, published and photographed government information products.

The following awards were presented to the DMR: Second Place was presented to the DMR Public Affairs Bureau in the category i s u a l Communications/Calendar for the "2002 Preserving and Enjoying Mississippi's Coastal Resources Calendar," Second Place was presented to the DMR Public Affairs Bureau in the category Special Communications/Shoestrin Budget for its

Mississippi Management Plan Data Release Press Kit," and an Honorable Mention was presented to the DMR Public Affairs Bureau and Coastal Preserves Bureau the category Publications, Brochures/Booklets for the 'Exploring Mississippi's Coastal Habitats Brochure."

More than 500 entries were received. Entries were judged on production, writing, editorial content, layout and design, and quality and creativity.

Entries were also filmed, reviewed to determine that they achieved the purpose for which they were produced, that they served the needs of their target audiences and that they represented a cost effective use of financial and other resources.

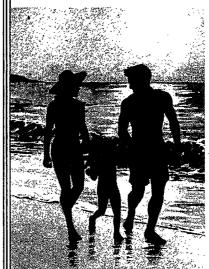

> Lauren Thompson, the DMR's Public Relations Director, accepted the awards on behalf of the DMR's Public Affairs and Coastal Preserves bureaus. "Our goal is to educate the public about the intrinsic value of our marine resources and to inspire them to be better stewards

Thompson said. "The recognition is especially meaningful because it comes from our peers-federal, state and local government communications professionals who disseminate information within and outside government." NAGC is the only organization for, by and about government communicators and communications. Its members are guided by a professional code of ethics, which demands complete and timely communication between government and online the people it serves.

Mississippi Department of Marine Resources is dedicated to enhancing, protecting and conserving marine interests of the State by managing all marine life, public trust wetlands, adjacent uplands and waterfront areas to provide for the optimal commercial, recreational, educational and economic uses of these resources consistent with environmental concerns and social changes. Japanese irises yield summer colors

BY NORMAN WINTER

MSU Horticulturist Central Mississippi Research & Extension Center

The past few years have given me a new appreciation for the various iris species available Southern gardeners. With careful selection, we can enjoy a long season of iris blooms.

Everyone ought to consider the Japanese iris, known botanically as Iris ensata. It complements the Louisiana and Siberian irises with toughness, beauty and blooms that are born in glorious summer displays after the other irises have finished. They flourish from zones 4 to 9.

The Japanese iris produces large blossoms in shades of blue, pink, white and purple, with bicolored stripes, veins and blotches. They are available in singledouble- and peony-flower forms. They are also tall, reaching 24 to 30 inches in height. These are a must for extending your iris season. The foliage -- bright green with a prominent rib -- is equally attractive.

Japanese irises perform best with at least six hours of sunlight per day. The soil should be fertile, organicrich and acidic. Tightly compacted soils yield an inferior, stunted-looking plant. If this describes your soil (like it does mine), you should amend with 3 to 4 inches of organic matter and till to a depth of 6 to 8 inches.

While tilling, incorporate 3 pounds of a 5-10-5 fertilizer per 100 square feet of planting area.

Container-grown irises that you see in the spring and summer can be set out at any time during the growing season at the same depth they are growing in the container. Space the plants 12 to 18 inches apart. In the fall, plant rhizomes just below the soil surface.

Japanese irises are heavy feeders, so give light applications of a 12-6-6 fertilizer in the early spring and every four to six weeks throughout the summer. Do not let plants dry out after fertilizing, as this will quickly bum plant roots. Keep the soil evenly moist during the growing season.

The best blooming occurs on 2- and 3-year-old clumps. Plants under good culture require dividing in the spring or fall every three to four years. Maintain a good layer of mulch year-round to conserve moisture and to moderate soil temperatures. The Japanese iris com-

IIGHER CONSCIOUSNESS

Learning and fellowship at Hancock's own Krishna temple

> BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER Staff Writer

t mid-morning on Sunday there was no indication of the flurry of activity that would soon fill the grounds of New Talavana, an International Society for Krishna Consciousness (ISKCON) farm settlement, located in far north Hancock County. The residents and congregation of the religious community worship Krishna(an East Indian word for God), who is scripturally based on the 5,000 year old Sanskrit text, the Bhagavad-gita (the Song of God). Followers believe that the goal of life is to develop a love of God. Sunday is feast day and one of the busiest days on the farm. Shrvadi Das from Perm in the Ural Mountains of Russia worked in solitude to clean the tables in the large covered outdoor area where the food would be served in the afternoon. He informed Yogendra, president and resident priest of the settlement of my arrival and I was directed to a large communal kitchen where the day's meal was being prepared. Members of ISKCON are given "spiritual names" after taking their vows about six months after they enter the temple, when it is assessed that they are serious in their wish to follow a more spiritual existence and the basic regulations of Krishna Consciousness: No eating of meat, fish or eggs; no gambling; no illicit sex; and no intoxication of any kind including tobacco, coffee, and tea.

Devotees, as followers are called, do live and work in the outside world and may choose to use their birth names in these pursuits. A certain number of devotees do live in the Krishna community exclusively, devoting their lives to Krishna Consciousness. Devotees live the basic tenants of simple living and higher thinking, but like everyone, they drive cars, use computers and cell phones and have high hopes for their children's futures.

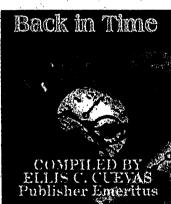

Gopal from Calcutta, India, Nimai from Mava Pur, India and Punderik, who grew up in Indiana were in charge of cooking many of the dishes for the feast on this particular

Rules to protect offshore rigs could hurt fishing

BY JAY REEVES Associated Press Writer

ORANGE BEACH, Ala. (AP) _ Homeland security is butting heads with good fishing in the Gulf of Mexico.

About 4,000 offshore rigs dot the gulf, supplying about a third of the nation's domestic oil and gas supply. The platforms are a vital link in the U.S. energy chain, yet they are virtually unprotected from terrorists.

The rigs also are a favorite destination for fishing boats, which bob up and down in their shadows as anglers fight for tuna, marlin and other species that are drawn to the rigs like bugs to a light bulb.

The Coast Guard is writfing new rules to plug what some see as a hole in America's homeland security plan, a lack of protection around the platforms. But anglers worry the changes could shut them out of prime territory, particularly if the government bans fishing around the rigs.

It would hurt everybody," said Bobby Walker, skipper of the 60-foot Summer Breeze II, which regularly takes charter customers far out in the gulf to fish near rigs. "There's a lot of boat traffic.'

The new rules are due to be released in July.

Rig security has never been a problem off the U.S. coast, but officials fear an attack similar to the one against the USS Cole, which terrorists targeted with a small boat laden with explosives, killing 17 sailors.

"If you knew what you were doing you could create a fairly large environmental problem," said attorney Robert Housman, who tracks homeland security issues for Bracewell & Patterson, a law firm in Washington, D.C.

While many rigs in the Gulf Persian . and Mediterranean Sea are armed with machine guns and missile launchers to scare off terrorists, Coast Guard spokesman Jonathan McCool said such a move isn't being considered here.

The Coast Guard also doesn't intend to completely shut off access to the rigs, said McCool, a petty officer in the Coast Guard's New Orleans office.

But there could be rules that change the way some people fish," McCool said.

Drilling industry spokesman Allen Verret said most rigs in the Gulf of . where fishing is a year-Mexico are unmanned and unprotected

Texas, Verret said 80 or so platforms in the deepest water provide 65 percent of the gulf's production.

That's where we're really vulnerable," said Verret, of the Offshore Operators Committee, which worked with the Coast Guard in the initial stages of the rulemaking process.

Any new regulations could affect rigs in all U.S. coastal waters. The new rules will also stipulate new security measures for coastal facilities such as fueling stations.

But it's the prospect of losing access to the offshore rigs that is scary to anglers on the warm Gulf Coast, round industry. It all comes down to geography.

With a sandy, flat floor, water rigs are visible from the Gulf of Mexico is like a

You can catch a lot of fish out there on a good said Kenneth day," Underwood, a recreational fisherman. "You go out, tie up on (a rig) and troll going out and coming in."

Alternatives to a ban on rig fishing are being developed.

Gulf Safety The Committee, working with the energy industry, anglers and the Coast Guard, is formulating a plan for captains to voluntarily radio to rigs before approaching, said Maj. John Thomas Jenkins, in charge of saltwater fishenforcement Alabama Marine Resources

But such a program may not be enough. Officials fear a well-placed attack on a major rig could have devastating effect.

Walker, the boat captain, doesn't see how the government can enforce any new rule with so many rigs and vessels in the gulf.

Advertising is an investment in the success of your restaurant. Every restaurant has competition, either within the town, or nearby city. Your potential customers are being courted by your competitors. If you do not invite those customers to do business with you, they are likely to forget you and dine elsewhere. It is not uncommon for consumers to switch their dining habits from one restaurant to another. Advertising helps to keep old customers and equally as impormt, make new ones.

Our community is constantly growing ich means that potential customers are bying into the market area all the time. Advertising gives these newcomers a reason to visit your restaurant.

Most businesses budget for their advertising expenses just as they do for other necessities such as rent, phones, etc. Smart business people realize that advertising is imperative to keep their business growing.

Another reason to advertise is that about people and The Sea Coast Echo is full advertising is news! You profit by telling our of pictures and stories about local people. readers what is new in your restaurant. Through advertising, you can let a wide audience know what specials you are offerhave and the character of your restaurant.

If you have something to sell, then you have something to advertise. When you have nothing to advertise, you are out of business. Advertising is designed to build your business and works best when it is repeated regularly. Consistent advertising pays off!

Now that you know some of the reasons to advertise, you're probably wondering how you can advertise most effectively. 2003 Sports: Is this the best ever?

Was the 2003 high school sports year the best ever in Hancock County history? Some say yes and others say no. However, one can certainly make a valid argument that it was. For starters, Hancock County claimed five state championships and had several close calls during the school vear. Has that happened before? Not in recent history. Let's take a look at what did happen in 2003.

The school year started with high school volleyball. OLA brought home the state title in a sport that is not separated by classifications. The Crescents took on a powerful Tupelo team that was physically bigger. But, the Crecents took the fight to them and prevailed with athleticism and quickness. OLA had reached the state finals the eyar before only to see it slip away.

In cross country, the St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws fell just short of the state title. Pearl High School edged the Rocks in the state meet at Clinton for the 4A crown and SSC claimed the runner-up spot. It was the highest finish for the Rocks in several years. Plus, SSC claimed their own invitational title, as well as, the divisional title for the first time in the same year.

Swimming made a big splash in Hancock Coutny this season. OLA's Alyssa Walters continued to set new marks in the sport while leading OLA to a best ever finish at the state meet - a top 10 performance. SSC continued its winning ways in the South State but ran into tough competition at the state meet.

However, they still finished in the top 15. The Hancock Hawks swim team continued to progress and made a superb showing at the state meet.

The big news of the fall was the high school gridiron. Hancock made a run at the state 5A playoffs late in the season; however, Oak Grove spoiled the show. The Warriors ended up playing in the 5A South State finals while Hancock earned a spot in the 63rd annual Shrimp Bowl in Biloxi.

The St. Stanislaus Rocka-chaws made a return trip to the 4A state playoffs and claimed the mythical county championship under firstyear head coach and SSC alum Casey Wittmann. SSC advanced to the state playoffs for the third time and played the same opponent in South Pike. The Eagles made the 4A South State finals after they disposed of SSC in the first round. SSC laid claim the to Jackson. the county championship by defeating both Bay High and Hancock in the same year for the first time since

The county will not have a clear-cut champion next year as all three teams will not play each other.

Bay High fielded a young and inexperienced squad in the season of 2002.

While the Tigers took their lumps, the young team tremendous showed progress by the end of the campaign. The season of 2003 will be a brighter one for the still young, Tiger squad.

Pass Christian had a down year after their first playoff trip since the 1940s. The Pirates had trouble with the injury bug which did not allow them to tap the potential of their team. Look for a rejuvenated Pirate squad in the fall.

Following the gridiron. season came a tremedously successful soccer and basketball season for both girls and boys. The county produced two state champions in soccer, a state champion in girls basketball, and three near misses in boys and girls basketball.

The OLA Crescents claimed their unprecedented fourth consecutive state girls soccer championship. OLA stormed through the regular season and playoffs en route to their record setting season. OLA had the first girls soccer program in Misssisippi back in 1990 and the Crescents kept their tradition of excellence in the sport alive in 2003. Is more on the way in 2004?

The St. Stanislaus Rocka-chaws claimed their third state soccer title and first in Class 4A with a decisive 3-1 victory over Pearl in the state finals. Pearl kept SSC away from the title in 2002 but that was not in the cards this season as SSC wreaked havoc on the competition in 2003. Peter Doty broke SSC's all-time scoring record and finished with 111 goals and signed a full athletic scholarship with Boston University.

On the hardwood, the Bay High Lady Tigers through the competition en route to a 35-1 record, a #1statewide ranking and a class 4A state title.

It was the first state championship for Bay High in any sport. Stephanie Reed and Carmen Labat earned scholarships following their spectacular seam the}$ defeated Oxford Chargers and advanced to the Class 4A Final Four before being ousted by nationally-ranked Jackson Lanier. The Lady Hawks were bounced from the Jackson tourney by Murrah for the second year in a row after a division championship and runner-up finish in south state. The Pass Christian Pirates made a strong go in the South State tournament but fell just short in their bid for a trip

Hancock County hosted three South State tournaments in basketball at SSC, Bay High and Hancock. It was the first time in Mississippi basketball history that three major tournments were held in one county. SSC hosted the 4A boys, Bay High the 4A girls, and Hancock the 5A girls sports and the gnat season. Most every athlete that competes in a spring sport faces a second foe in those little bloodsuckers that seem to swarm in the millions - gnats. With the gnats come baseball, softball, track, golf and tennis. Bay High missed the playoffs in baseball and softball by one run, literally. Both Tiger programs ended the season in ties for the final standings.

That meant a tie-breaker rule would be in effect to decide the last playoff team. The Tigers missed out both times by just one run. However, a lot is to be said for the two teams that placed themselves in that position.

The Bay High Tiger baseball team was the best in the county this season.

Led by PRCC signee Brandon Strong, Alleman and Aaron Morris, the Tigers defeated some of the top programs along the Gulf Coast. The Lady Tigers under the direction of Debbie Triplett started to show some of that hardwood magic on the diamond. More bright things are expected from that bunch in

The OLA softball team advanced to the state playoffs after winning the division title behind timely hitting and dead-on pitching.

Tennis action got heated as the SSC/OLA tennis team narrowly defeated the Bay High program for the division title. Several team members from each school participated in the state tennis tournament.

The golf season saw a atively young Rock-a-chaw link squad advance to the state match following a runner-up showing in the division tournament.

Junior TJ Koger placed fourth overall in the state match. Pass Christian's Nick Beale was the low medalist in the division match and earned the right to compete individually in the state match where he finished in the top 10.

The track season turned in by this year's athletes was an unexpected one to say the least. SSC finished division champion, regional champion, south state runner-up and seventh overall in the state meet. Four medals were brought home by area athletes. SSC's Fred Mallini, Allen Leone, and Kyle Lewis brought home the hardware.

Mallini used flawless technique to place third in the shotput while Leone earned the silver in a gutsy 800m race. Lewis claimed two medals in the 3200m (silver) and the 1600m (bronze) races that proved to be as much strategy as they were stamina.

Bay High placed a 1600m relay team of Lorenzo Lewis, Monroe Jordan, Norman Wilkes, and Greg Lemeir in the state track

The Tigers finished fifth overall. OLA was led by allstate finalist Jennifer Asper on the track this year.

Finally, the Bay High dance team brought home a Moving on to spring state title this past school year that brought the county's total of state titles to > Athletes signing national letters of intent became commonplace in 2003.

While not able to mention all the signing, here are some of the ones that come to mind. Maurice Hardnett will continue on the gridiron in the fall while Gabe Willis will run the point for PRCC. Brett Amond looks to play early on the hardwood at Loyola while Brandon Strong will ply his trade on the diamond in Poplarville. Carmen Labat, Devin Necaise and Stephanie Reed have the chance to continue bouncing the basketball for Paine College, the University of Memphis and PRCC. As does Cody Ladner and Jeremy Strief for Louisiana College.

Kara Harshbarger will kick her way onto the field at USM in soccer while Peter Doty heads up the East Coast to try his luck at. Boston University.

No matter how one slices the cake, 2003 was an incredible year in high school sports. If football is your sport or basketball is your love, you had something to pile into the stands for in 2003. If track is where it is at for you or soccer is what kick-starts your day, then you had something to follow in the spring. No matter what it is that gets you going, there are athletes of all varieties to cheer for in Hancock County, Will 2004 be as suc-cessful as 2003? Only time will tell. But one thing is for sure, the athletes and coaches have gotten a taste of the sweet success. So, fans can expect more to come in 2004. See you at the game!

Sunday. Punderik would also serve as my guide for the day. You can just call me Gary, he said.

Yogendra would offer some of the food to the Deity, Lord Krishna (God) before the meal. Offering a portion to God before each meal is a tradition of devotees. They believe this practice of preparing the food to be offered first to God imparts a transcendental, spiritual quality to the meal. Or to put it more simply, wholesome food prepared with a loving hand tastes better.

While we wait for the service to begin at the temple, Punderik fills me in on some of the Krishna culture, much of which is derived from traditional East Indian culture.

There is no unchaparoned dating allowed on ISKCON property. When a devotee feels that he or she would like to contemplate marriage, the elders are approached on the subject. A devotee may have a partner in mind or the elders may suggest a suitable partner. A suitable period of chaperoned courtship, usually at least six month ensues, and then if the couple feels they are compati-raising of a family. (The first phase Brahmacharya, or after her graduation from student life, the attainment of maturity and education is the first stage, roughly 25 years.) When children are raised the couple enters the stage of Vanaprahasta, roughly age 50 or so, where the couple travels and spends time alone.

The final stage is Sanyas, roughly age 75, when tradition dictates that the man travel alone, sharing his acquired wisdom, and the woman returns home to live with the eldest son or child and oversees the care of the grandchildren and household.

The separation is in preparation for the death of one of the partners, when separation would have occurred naturally, allowing them to establish a life separately ahead of time, Punderik says.

Punderik has been married to Sankirtan for many years. They met in a temple in Gainesville Fl. and have raised one daughter, now 26, and have one son who is 11 years old. The children have been raised in the tem-

This weekend Rosalila, the couple's daughter is visiting from San Francisco, where she lives and works Milsap College on an academic scholarship. Rosalila attended the school at the farm until the eighth grade, then went on to graduate from Hancock County schools.

"Individual educational choices are up to the parents," said Punderik, "But the school at the farm offers a freedom from the worry about drugs or violence or many of the other problems facing many schools these days and our children tend to excel."

The ceremony is beginning and the crowd which has gathered by now goes to the temple. Everyone must remove their shoes before. entering. Yogendra makes the offering of the five elements to the alter containing the images of the Deity. Several women lead the chanting.

Men keep the beat with their instruments, both dance. After the elements are offered to Krishna, they are offered to each person at the service.

When a short class is over, the feast is ready outside. We sit at picnic style tables under a large covered slab near the gardens where much of the food for the meal was grown. The ten courses more than cover your plate.

The food is delicious and reminiscent of the times I visited a friend of mine who had joined a temple in Denver, CO., many many years ago, I tell Punderik. I believe he lives in Los now I Angeles Sadhanta.

"Yes, we know him," says Punderik. "You should be able to call and get hold of him very easily."

· I smile and turn to talk with Rosalila about what it is like to live in the material world in San Francisco after growing up in the spiritual world of the farm.

. "I love it ... now I am more than just my spiritual side, and there are many more sides that I haven't yet discovered, like motherhood," she says. "And when I get homesick I go to the temple in Berkeley and my energy is renewed ... it is wonderful, like home.'

It is hard to leave the good food and the pleasant conversation, but it is time to go. As I leave I think of the group enjoying worship, family, friends and good food much like everyone else on a Sunday.

Some of the prettiest displays are with other Japanese irises placed in groups of different colors. The large leaves look striking in the tropical garden when combined with elephant ears, ferns and bananas, and in front of larger ornamental grasses.

There are more Japanese iris varieties than you ever dreamed. Garden centers stock more every year, and Mississippi specialty growers have a good selection. Favorites are Cry of Rejoice (purple with yellow center), Diomedes (blue), Rikki-Pikki (white); Loyalty (violet-blue, double blossoms and vellow striping on the falls) and Sapphire Star (pale lavender with white veins).

Spring is hitting the Coast and is within sight of the Mississippi-Tennessee border. All gardeners within those boundaries can grow the Japanese iris. I doubt there will be a single complaint from anyone who gives them a try.

27th Annual St. Paul's Seafood Festival set May 30 to June 1 in Pass Christian

BY SHANNON JENKINS Staff Writer

he 27th Annual St. Paul's Seafood Festival returns this year on the grounds of St. Paul Catholic Church in Pass Christian May 30 through June 1.

This Pass favorite features fresh Gulf Coast seafood from gumbo and shrimp po-boys to seafood platters and crab-stuffed potatoes.

New specialties will include New Orleans-style barbecue shrimp and crawfish tamales by JoAnn Hanson York and onion mums by Father Dennis Carver. Hamburgers, hot dogs and eggrolls will also be available.

Although this festival serves up booth after booth of tasty foods, it was not originally designed to feed the masses.

Father Dennis Carver said the purpose of the festival was to underwrite the cost of Catholic education at St. Paul Catholic School.

"The festival was established in order to keep the level of tuition cost at a reasonable rate for parents and at the same time be fiscally responsible for the operational cost of education at St. Paul," he said. "The festival benefits the school monetarily, but its purpose is to help parents."

According to a financial study, he said tuition would have to go up 33 percent if it were not for the festival and other fundraisers

Chip McDermott, the festival chairperson, said the school netted $60,000 from last year's event.

"The festival is a necessity because of rising costs and fluctuation in enrollment," said McDermott, who has a third-grader at the school.

In addition to the $60,000, McDermott said last year's festival also brought in about 15,000 people over three days. He said organizers hope to attract more people and raise more money with this year's event.

To keep attracting these large crowds, the festival also features entertainment for everyone and carnival rides and games for children. The entertainment begins Friday night with the party band, Dr. Rock and the Interns at 8 p.m. On Saturday night, STARZ will perform from 8 p.m. until. The Beach Brothers will help close out the festival on Sunday at 6 p.m.

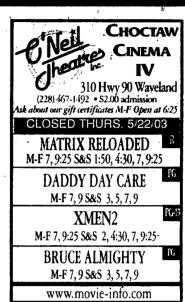

Over 40 crafters will be featured this year, along with a silent auction of vacation packages, charter fishing trips, artwork, jewelry, sports memorabilia and much more.

The children of St. Paul School are once again donating one-of-a-kind pieces for the auction.

On Saturday, the Gulf Coast Running Club will host a 5K run at 8 a.m. As an election year, candidates will have an opportunity to speak on Sunday.

Festival hours are Friday from 5 p.m. to midnight; Saturday from 11 a.m. to midnight; and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 9

Casino Magic Bay St. Louis will present a double dip of Four Tops

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Four Tops will bring their special brand of harmonizing to Casino Magic Bay St. Louis Friday & Saturday, June 6 & 7 at 9 p.m. each evening. Tickets are $14.95, $19.95, and $24.95 and are available at the Casino Magic Box Office, by calling 1-800-5-MAGIC-5, or at any Ticketmaster location.

The Four Tops have been marveling audiences with their unique blend of pure vocal power and unparalleled harmonies since 1954. They have brought to the American people and the world a sound so singular that it is woven into the fabric of American pop music.

Hits like "Baby, I Need Your Lovin'," "I Can't Help Myself (Sugar Pie Honey Bunch)" and "Reach Out, I'll Be There" topped the charts and became anthems of a generation. The Tops were a sensation abroad as well. At a time when the U.S. charts were dominated by the Beatles and the Rolling Stones, The Four Tops sat like kings at number one in England. Later came more years together and then be 21 to attend.

hits like "Ain't No Woman (Like the One I Got)," "Keeper of The Castle," "Are You Man Enough" and "Am I My Brothers' Keeper?" The Four Tops were stunning audiences with their live performances, sweating their soul on stage proving that their blend of emotional stage persona and unforgettable songs had launched them to the pinnacle of the entertainment world.

In the early 1980's, The Four Tops recorded two albums, showcasing such monster hits as "When She Was My Girl," "Tonight I'm Gonna Love You All Over" and "I Believe In You and Me." Later, they recorded "Indestructible" which garnered rave reviews. In 1990, The Tops were inducted into the Rock 'n Roll Hall of Fame, and in 1997 were honored with a on Hollywood star Boulevard, adding to their growing list of awards and accolades. Sadly, in June of 1997, one of the Tops, Lawrence Payton, died of liver cancer.

· The Four Tops had 44

there were three. Originally, the three decided to go on and sing and to continue doing what they had started to do years ago - to bring joy to millions through their music. Then along came Theo Peoples (former member of The Temptations) who fit in perfectly, so once again there are Four Tops, still true to the soul, memory and performance of Payton. Generations can close their eyes, hear a Four Tops tune and it catapults them to a memory.

This group has the distinct pleasure of marking a part of American culture with their music.

Today, The Four Tops are going strong, performing to standing room only crowds all over the world, delighting old and new fans alike.

Their powerful, recognizable sweet harmonies and unforgettable voices have firmly established their status in music history as musical legends!

Don't miss the Four Tops only at Casino Magic Bay Louis Friday & Saturday, June 6 & 7. Must

Gautier 'Pigout' looking for local talent for battle of bands

Do you think your band has what it takes? Let Gautier's judges be the judge of that. Applications are now being accepted. Entry is free with submission of a tape or CD to the Pigout Committee for initial

The Battle of the Bands competition is open to local and regional bands in the categories: following Bluegrass, Country Jazz/RB/Blues and Rock.

Each category will be limited to four performing bands. Finalists will be contacted prior to the event for performance scheduling. Each band will be judged immediately following their performance by a panel of local celebrity judges (selected from that specific musical genre).

The winner of each category will receive a cash prize. The Battle of the Bands will provide twelve hours of music for the Festival throughout the day.

The City of Gautier's 1st

Annual Pigout Barbecue and Music Festival will be held July 19th at the "Old Place". Street. The gates will be open from 9:00 a.m. until 11:00 p.m.. A $1.00 donation will collected at the gate. Children under the age of six will be admitted free.

Any band interested in joining the competition should contact Gautier City Hall at 228-497-8000 for an application or send an email

At one time or another, the Gulf Coast has been home to Indians and outlaws, pirates and presidents, astronauts and athletes.

Archaeologists have dated the earliest occupation of the region at somewhere around 6000 to 4000 B.C., when Native Americans moved down into the area and developed several different tribes along the Coast, including the Acolopissas, the Bayougoulas, the Biloxis and the Pascagoulas.

Biloxi alone has seen eight different flags fly on its horizon: French, English, Spanish, West Florida Republic, United States, Mississippi Magnolia, Confederate States and Mississippi State. The rest of the coast has an equally rich ethnic history. From the original Native Americans, who were members of many tribes, to the European, African, Asian and other settlers who forever changed the face of the Coast, the blood of many nations runs in the veins of Mississippi's three southernmost counties, Hancock Harrison and Jackson.

Early European exploration of the area seems to have begun in the early 16th century, and Spanish explorers had mapped the entire northern Gulf of Mexico region by some time around 1519.

The Spanish, however, feared Native American attacks and gave the Gulf Coast a wide berth – finally abandoning colonization attempts somewhere around 1556.

No one else even tried until the French came in the late 17th century.

the Mississippi River. In 1682, Robert le Seur de

Gaming brings jobs, tourism, entertainment to the Gulf Coast

o exploration of the Mississippi Gulf Coast would be complete without a few words about the Coast's gaming industry.

Since the first casino opened on the Coast in 1992, both the area's economy and population have expanded exponentially.

According to a recent report by the Mississippi Gaming Association, Mississippi Gaming Entertainment: A Success Story and Then Some, casinos have brought incredible economic benefits to the Coast by employing hundreds of local people and directly benefitting cities through tax revenues; creating new revenue through a boom in gaming and tourism-related businesses; and helping the Coast to draw lucrative development and industrial jobs by making the area more attractive to big business.

The recently released study from the University of Southern Mississippi, "Gaming in the Mississippi Economy," highlighted the positive impacts of casino development.

In his report, "The 90's: A Decade of Growth in South Mississippi", Dr. Philip Jeffress, Director of the Gulf South Economic Research Center, says "The Mississippi Gulf Coast experienced a major economic boom during the decade of the 90's. Economic performance actually surpassed the high benchmark of expansion that occurred in the state and national economies.... Gaming is generally regarded as the principal catalyst for local economic expansion (on the

Learn to be a shrimper on the Biloxi Shrimping Trip

ECHO STAFF REPORT t's official: Shrimp isn't t's official: Shrimp isn't just for eating any more – it also has entertainment value.

The Mississippi Tourism Commission recently presented The Biloxi Shrimping Trip with the 2003 Award for Excellence in Tourism.

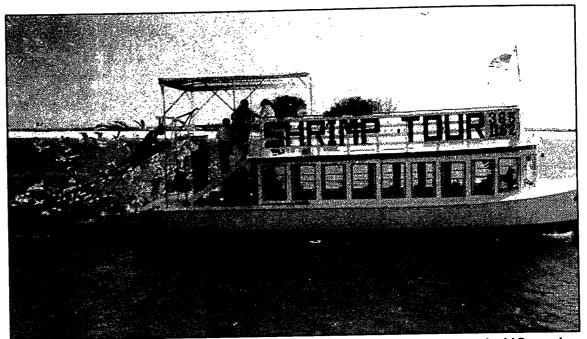

The Biloxi Shrimping Trip was started by Louis Gorenflo in 1954. Gorenflo contracted with a boat builder Lionel Eleuterius Sr. to construct a new tourist vessel to take the public out shrimping.

Gorenflo's intention was to stimulate interest in the daily activities of the professional shrimpers. He named the boat the "Sail Fish," and it's still in operation today, run by Corrie and Virginia Eleuterius, who purchased the business from Gorenflo. Corrie is the Sail Fish builder's nephew.

Gorenflo's shrimping trip included a tour of the seafood factories that were located on the east end of Biloxi. Participants would tour through the factory to see how the shrimp were graded, "deheaded," picked and/or peeled. Tour groups would also pass near Deer Island to see how oysters were tonged and culled (breaking out the oysters of optimal/legal size and returning the smaller ones to the water). Until 1969, there were people living on Deer Island. One of the residents, John Guilhot, was known as "the Hermit of Deer Island." He became part of the "show" for the tourists, up until his death in 1959.

If the "Hermit" needed groceries, he would clip his grocery list on a cane pole with a clothes pin. The pole would be stuck in the water near the island. When Gorenflo saw the paper, he would pick it up during the first part of the tour. Once the tour arrived at the seafood factory, Gorenflo would pass the list to one of the factory employees, who would then purchase the groceries while the tourists viewed the factory.

The Biloxi Shrimping Trip operates seven days a week between mid-February and mid-December, weather permitting. To book a tour, call 385-1182 or 1-800-289-7908.

On the next shrimping trip, Gorenflo would blow the boat's horn as he approached Deer Island and Guilhot would row in his skiff to meet the Sail Fish, all the while singing songs from his favorite operas. As he sang, the tourists would throw coins in his boat to express their appreciation for the entertainment. Rumors persist that the Hermit of Deer Island was actually a retired opera singer from France.

Gorenflo acquired a wealth of scientific knowledge as well as numerous sea legends and fishing stories during his ownership of the Biloxi Shrimping Trip tour. One of his favorite activities was to exhibit the exoskeletons of crabs while explaining their patterns of growth and development. During the tour, he would also often tell the tale of the "pearls" of the saltwater, hardhead catfish (Arius felis). The catfish is said to have pearls in the upper part of its skeleton.

One version of the story goes that, if you can hear the pearls rattle, you can talk to God. Another version says that the pearls represent the dice cast by the Romans for the robes of Christ.

Since Corrie and Virginia Eleuterius purchased the business, they say, they have been very surprised by the number of people from so many countries who have heard about the Biloxi Shrimping Trip.

Recently, a couple from Russia took the tour after reading an article about it – proving how far the reputation for good Southern hospitality, the Shrimping Trip's trademark, can reach.

Today, there are no longer shrimp factories in the part of Biloxi where the Biloxi Shrimping Trip operates. This has forced some changes in the tour. Now the trip is approximately 70 minutes long. The Eleuteriuses exhibit shrimp nets and identify each part as it goes into the water. When it's in far enough, they demonstrate how it works.

They also offer a narrative on how the shrimping industry works, including information on the best time of year for shrimping, what species shrimp are caught and the life cycle of white shrimp and brown shrimp. Tourists also learn the difference between boats that work in state waters compared to those that work in federal waters; how they catch and keep their shrimp; how long the shrimpers stay out; and a multitude of other things involved in the daily business of shrimping.

The Biloxi Shrimping Trip operates seven days a week, weather permitting, from mid-February to mid-December. The Sail Fish always stays in the protected waters between Deer Island and the mainland. Reservations are not required for groups of 14 or less. Discount prices are available for groups of 15 or more with prior reservations.

The business is based at the Biloxi Small Craft Harbor, slip number 104. The address is 693 Beach Blvd., Hwy. 90 and Main St., Biloxi, Ms. 39530, (to write, P.O. Box 39533). Telephone: (228) 385-1182 or 1-800-289-7908.

he visitor center reopened its doors to the public in January after heing closed due to the events of Sept. 11, 2001. Soon after reopening, StenniSphere was the first stop on a national tour of a traveling exhibit of the International Space Station.

New exhibits, anniversary celebrations and outreach efforts, including the second public evening engine test, highlighted StenniSphere's 2002 calendar.

Celebration of the 32nd anniversary of Apollo 13 s flight into history brought guests and dignitaries to honor Apollo 13 astronaut and native Mississippian Fred Haise.

An exhibit recognizing the contributions of space pioneer Werner von Braun also opened last year.

StenniSphere took its show on the road in a joint venture with Entergy's IMAX Theater in New Orleans. More than 500,000 visitors viewed exhibits from Stennis while attending presentations of the International Space Station 3-D movie.

StenniSphere, Stennis Space Center's award-winning visitor center, features 14,000 square feet of informative displays and exhibits from NASA, the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command and other agencies located at Stennis Space Center. More than 250,000 visitors from around the world tour the space center each year. Tours to StenniSphere originate every 15 minutes from the Launch Pad tour stop at the Hancock County Welcome Center at Interstate 10, just 45 miles east of New Orleans.

On display at the Launch Pad is a 30-foot Lunar Lander that was used as a trainer by Apollo astronauts for their Moon mission, complete with Apollo 13 Astronaut Fred Haise's boot prints at its base.

Visitors board shuttles for a 25-minute narrated tour through Stennis Space

Hundreds showed up recently for a night-time test of the space shuttle engine. StenniSphere Tours are offered 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except New Year's Day, Easter, Thanksgiving, Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.

* Space Shuttle Cockpit --

Center's unique acoustical buffer zone to America's largest rocket propulsion testing complex. This is where Apollo Saturn V engines were tested in the 1960s and today where the Space Shuttle's powerful main engines are proven flight-worthy. NASA's nextgeneration rocket engines also are tested at Stennis.

The lobby of StenniSphere features an exhibit highlighting astronauts from Mississippi and Louisiana, pioneer rocket scientist Dr. Wernher von Braun, as well as the late Sen. John C. Stennis, for whom the center is named.

Some of the exciting exhibits include:

* Moon Rock -- collected by the crew of Apollo 15 in August 1971, estimated to be more than three billion years old

* Apollo 4 Command Module -- unmanned module launched Nov. 9, 1967, to test the thermal protection system during reentry

* Apollo 13 Space Suit -worn by Mississippi Astronaut Fred Haise, a crew member of the Apollo 13 mission in April 1970

* Test Control Center -- a mock up of a Stennis Space Center Control Center where you can "test" a Space Shuttle Main Engine and "launch" a rocket the Saturn rocket; a scale model of the Saturn V rocket that took America's astronauts to the Moon; a Space Shuttle Main Engine; a Motion Simulator -- lets space adventurers experience the sights and sounds of a mission to Mars

AUDITORIUM PROGRAMS

The adventures of two astronauts, Dr. Halley Comet and Cosmo, are portrayed in the live stage show, "Oh My Stars, We've Landed on Mars," performed daily in the StenniSphere auditorium.

Space-themed videos play throughout the day.

OTHER FEATURES

The StenniSphere restaurant offers a full menu of local favorites such as gumbo and po-boys. The Space Odyssey Gift Shop offers the "right stuff" for souvenirs or gifts. The visitor center is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. except New Year's Day, Easter, Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. Tours depart on a regular schedule each day from the Launch Pad tour stop at the I-10 Welcome Center. Special presentations for groups can be arranged. Stennis Space Center is located on state Highway 607 with easy access from Interstates 10 and 59. Admission to StenniSphere is free.

Motion Simulator rides are $4 for children and $5 for adults.

Waveland's South Coast Skate Park is drawing national praise from the experts

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

fter opening more than a year ago, South Coast Skate Park has established itself as both a tourist attraction for Waveland and a hot spot for skateboarders.

Billed as "one of the best (skate) parks in the nation" in the new skateboarding magazine Almost Famous; South Coast Skate Park has attracted crowds with its amenities, special events and competitions.

Owner Kelly Welsh organized the annual King of the Park competition shortly after the park's opening last year. The second King of the Park held in April of this year drew in approximately 350 spectators and participants from Alabama, Florida, Louisiana and Tennessee.

throughout the year including three to four contests, two summer camps and four to five lock-ins.

The park has also gained national recognition within the skateboarding circuit. Several national tours and competitions have utilized the park's facilities.

In early May, The Firm Summer Tour 2003 stopped at South Coast Skate Park. This tour featured several professional skateboarders including Ray Barbee, Lance Mountain, Jani Laitiala, Matt Beach and Bob Burnquist, the No. 1 vert ramp skateboarder in the world. Welsh said The Firm attracted about 300 people to the park.

The 25,000-square-foot skate park will also serve as a stop for the Hometownrising Amateur Skateboard Contest Series on May 31 and the Birdhouse Tour on Aug. 9.

Waveland Mayor Tommy Longo it is amazing how much interest the park has generated.

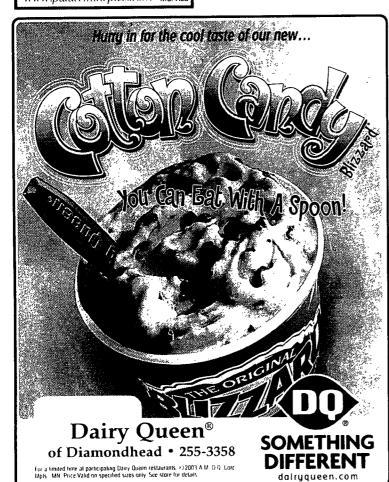

"The city is getting publicity from across the United States," Longo said. "The park's visitors are eating in our restaurants and staying in our hotels."

Longo said South Coast Skate Park not only generates interest in Waveland, but it also provides local children with a safe, healthy environment for recreation.

For more information about South Coast Skate Park located at 118 Auderer Blvd., call 228-467-8003 or visit www.southcoastxtremesports.com.

Kelly Welsh, left, and Brian Wilemon are currently organizing the 2nd Annual King of the Park competition at South Coast Skate Park in Waveland.

The aquarium's "Adopt-A-Tank" program is paramount to the maintenance of the center's 48 aquariums, which range in size form 10 to 42,000 gallons. Any person, organization or business may adopt a tank for yearly fees ranging from $100 to $20,000. Sponsors may adopt all or part of a tank for all or part of a year. Adoptions fees go to the maintenance and feeding of the tank's residents. A plaque on the tank acknowledges your support.

The center's living displays illustrate the progression of water through the water cycle, freshwater to salt water habitats. The first set of displays represent fresh water river and creek systems; the second, a salt marsh or brackish water environment; the third, the lower salinity of the Mississippi Sound; the fourth, the higher salinity areas of the barrier islands and island passes.

The large center tank represents the Gulf Of Mexico. The tank is 30 feet in diameter and eight feet deep. Its 42,000 gallons hold such creatures as sharks, eels, and a sea turtle. Because it is harmful to move large fish, most of the tanks' residents start out small when taking up residence in the tank and are allowed to grow there.

One special display, to remind visitors of their impact on the environment, contains an odd looking turtle, a Red-Eyed Slider. He is odd because at first he looks almost like two turtles until tour guides explain that when he was young he was caught in a plastic six-pack ring. When he came to the aquarium the ring, which had prevented growth in the middle of his shell, had to be cut out, said Coordinator of Operations Willie Heard.

The Aquarium also sponsors a recycling program for plastic six-pack rings, which may be dropped off at the center.

The center is administered by the University of Southern Mississippi and is the Biloxi campus of the Gulf Coast Research Lab and – with a campus at Stennis Space Center - comprise the USM College of Marine Sciences. The center is located at 115 Beach Blvd. at the Western edge of Biloxi Bay, just before the bridge to Ocean Springs. Hours of operation are Monday-Saturday from 9a.m. to 4p.m. For more information call 228-347-5550 or contact the website at scott.aquarium@usm.edu.

Beauvoir: 100 Years

A special exhibit celebrating the past century at the Jefferson Davis Home and Library in Biloxi

THE SEA COAST ECHO

eauvoir, The
Jefferson Davis
Home and Presidential
Library is celebrating the last century with a new exhibit in the Confederate Museum.

Beauvoir: 100 Years is curated by Alice Bellanger and Jennifer Myers. This new exhibit will officially open on May 30, 2003 the fifth anniversary of the opening of the Jefferson Davis Presidential Library.

This exhibit highlights the events that took place at Beauvoir over the last 100 years, starting with the sale of the property to the Mississippi Division of the United Sons of the Confederate Veterans in 1903. Visitors will learn about the opening of the veterans home and view part of the original chapel just as the veterans left it. During the 1920's and 30's the veteran's home saw many happy occasions, including a visit from President Franklin Roosevelt. The veterans came out to greet the President with a hearty "rebel yell"

As the veterans grew older, plans were put into place to create a museum on the property and restore Beauvoir House. In 1941, the house was officially opened to the public and the remaining veterans and widows were moved to the eastern part of the property. By the late 1950's and the last of the widows were moved to a nursing home in Greenwood, Mississippi. Beauvoir was known as a historic attraction on the gulf coast and as the new Confederate Museum was created in 1957, Beauvoir began a new chapter in its history as a historic site.

Visitors to this special exhibit can view artifacts from the veterans as well as souvenirs from the original gift shop and photos from the devastation created by Camille in 1969. The exhibit concludes with a look at the future with the new Gulf Coast Botanical Gardens project. Visitors will be able to view the master plans for this twenty one million dollar expansion project.

Beauvoir:100 Years will be on display throughout the summer in the Confederate Museum and is included in the regular admission fee.

system of masonry forts for coastal defense. During that time, inclement weather, the Civil War and isolation were a few of the many challenges the Corps faced. Ship Island was considered important to the defense of New Orleans and the Gulf Coast because of its deep water harbor and location along a shipping route. The fort's masonry work is impressive. The concrete foundation extends more than nine feet below sea level. Although several million bricks were used in its construction, the fort contains more concrete than brick. Ferry boats depart from the Gulfport Yacht Harbor near Marine Life Oceanarium.

The boat trip will take you across the Mississippi Sound, used by European explorers who first arrived on these shores in the 1600s. Today shrimp boats, intercostal barges and ocean-going freighters make up most of the maritime activity you will see between Ship Island and the mainland. Often, Atlantic Bottlenosed Dolphins can be seen surfacing alongside the boats.

The vessels have open and closed decks. Showers, changing rooms, covered picnic pavilions, chair & umbrella rental, and affordable food service is available on the boats & island.

Atlantic Bottlenosed Dolphins are frequently seen surfacing new the boats. A one-way ferry cruise to the island takes approximately 50 minutes. The ferry cruises daily, weather permitting, through October 26.

expedition to try to establish a colony near the mouth of the Mississippi, LaSalle was murdered by his own men.

Over the next few years, Spain, France and England all tried to claim the area.

'Spain claimed ownership by right of discovery and by gift of the Pope," Robert G. Scharff wrote in Louisiana's Loss, Mississippi's Gain - A History of Hancock County, MS from the Stone Age to the Space Age. "France asserted that Spain had given up all rights she may have once had by failing to exploit her property or establish any colonies; and England questioned just who gave the Pope the authority to give away her birthright to Spain. The race was on!"

In order to defend against other nations' claims to the territory, the French sent Canadian Pierre le Moyne, Sieur d'Iberville to establish a fortified colony in the region. D'Iberville sailed from Rochefort, France on Dec. 14, 1698 with 200 men, including his 18-year-old brother Jeane Baptiste le Moyne, Sieur de Bienville.

Biloxi

One of the oldest cities in the United States, Biloxi was established as the first French settlement in the Mississippi Valley in early 1699. D'Iberville and his brother, Bienville, came ashore that year to claim the coast for King Louis XIV of France. Finding the waters too shallow for their boats, the men left, with d'Iberville moving his vessels to what is now Ocean Springs and Bienville going west to the area he named in honor of King Louis IX, the town still known as Bay St. Louis.

In addition to being the first French settlement in the Valley, Biloxi was the first permanent white settlement in the area, and the first capital, of the Louisiana Territory. Biloxi was also the site of the first two French forts in the area, Fort Maurepas (in what is now Ocean Springs) and Fort Louis, which was located in the area between the current sites of the Biloxi Lighthouse and the Old French Cemetery. Biloxi remained the capital of the Louisiana Territory until late 1722. when the capital moved to New Orleans.

Biloxi is a namesake of the Biloxi tribe (of the Sioux family) that inhabited the area when d'Iberville landed in 1699. The Biloxi tribe met d'Iberville when he landed, and later sealed a pact of friendship with the French people through the passing of the Calumet (peace pipe) and a bottle of French brandy.

"Biloxi" means "first people," which makes it an appropriate name for both the Indian village and the French settlement which followed. Biloxi is the only city in the U.S. and perhaps the world, which bears this name.

Biloxi contains several historic landmarks that attest to the military influence in its history. Keesler Air Force Base, which isn't technically a landmark, is still a vital part of Biloxi's history. The base was established in the early part of World War II, and continues in operation today as the largest electronics training center in the world. Even the space program's history includes a Biloxi note: Apollo 13 astronaut Fred Haise was born there.

The Mississippi Sound's waters and resources have played a large part in shaping the city. Mullet, a plentiful food fish, were dubbed "Biloxi Bacon" during the Civil War when they saved the city's people from starvation during a Union blockade. Shrimp and oysters play a large commercial role in the area's economy, since Biloxi is one of the world's largest canners of them.

In addition, Biloxi shares part of the world's longest manmade beach, 28 miles long.

Ocean Springs

Ocean Springs was the original site of Biloxi, then was renamed around 1720 when Biloxi was moved across the bay of the same name to its present location. The original settlement then became known as Old Biloxi.

Long before d'Iberville landed, though, the Indians of the area had another name for Ocean Springs. Translated into English, the Indian name was "Holy Ground", because of the mineral springs which the Indians believed had healing powers.

Ocean Springs was a small Indian trading post until it became a part of the United States in the Louisiana Purchase of 1803. The first permanent settlers began moving in, and the settlement was renamed Lynchburg in 1853 in honor of a merchant operating a trading post on Fort Bayou.

The merchant, George Lynch, was working with Rev. P.P. Bowen, a Baptist minister, at a sawmill at the Fort Bayou bridge. Bowen noticed a small stream running from the ground, and found out that it was a spring, after doing a little digging. When the water was analyzed later, it was found to contain high amounts of iron and other minerals. Bowen built marble baths over the springs with separate facilities for women and men, and an influx of people began.

It is said that Dr. George Austin, planning to take advantage of the springs by establishing a sanitarium, coined the name Ocean Springs. The name stuck, and was adopted in 1854. The town quickly became a health resort, and a regular stop of the Morgan steamboat line between New Orleans and Mobile.

At one time, Ocean Springs was known for both its pecan and citrus industries. Now, the city boasts a number of historical claims, including being the site of Fort Maurepas and the residence of artist Walter Inglis

Moss Point

Once called Mossey Point by loggers on the Pascagoula River and East Pascagoula by others, the town was designated Moss Point in 1867 when a post office was built there. In the late 1800s, Moss Point was the largest pine lumber export center in the nation. Even after that distinction was taken over by Gulfport in the early 1900s, Moss Point continued to ship lumber to Gulfport by barge until the mid-1940s.

The town officially incorporated 1901. in Appropriately enough for a logging town, the first mayor was named Charles H. Wood. In 1911, Moss Point began shipping some of its lumber to Sweden, where it was made into pulp and shipped back to Moss Point. The first paper mill using southern pine pulp was built in 1912 just outside Moss Point's city Today, limits. it is International Paper Company.

During World War I, the lumber industry brought in new growth as the government began building cargo ships for war use. These "Liberty Vessels" used heart pine from local mills and oak trees in their construction. However, Armistice ended the newfound prosperity. The two new shipyards and most of the new workers' houses were dismantled, and the town settled back into the slower pace of life it still enjoys today.

Pascagoula

Like Biloxi, Pascagoula was named for its first inhabitants, the Pascagoula Indians. For a while, though it was named Scranton, after a railroad surveyor who didn't know what to call the area and so gave it his own name. However, in 1917, Pascagoula became the official designa-

The Scranton name does live on, though, in the Scranton Floating Museum at the Pascagoula River-Park. The 70-foot shrimp boat offers visitors a view of life at sea, which has been a vital part of the whole coast's livelihood for many years.

The town of Pascagoula was founded in the early 1700s as a German settlement of a French land grant. Mme. Chaumont sent her nephew, Colonel De La Pointe to settle her grant along the Pascagoula River. He took some 300 German colonists with him.

Once there, De La Pointe built Old Spanish Fort, made of local materials ... oyster shells, mud and moss ... to withstand Indian attack. The Fort later became Kreb's Fort, after De La Pointe's married daughter an Alsatian nobleman, Baron Frans von Krebs. The Fort is still open to the public as an historical landmark.

Shipbuilding, long an economic source for Pascagoula, is now a major industry for the city, Ingalls Shipbuilding is one of the nation's prime constructors of naval ships.

Gulfport

Incorporated in 1898, Gulfport has a feel and flavor different from that of its neighboring cities. Founded as a railroad and port town, Gulfport's history is that of a business city rather than a resort, or even industrial Captain Joseph T. Jones was the driving force behind Gulfport's establishment. He wanted to build a port city to take advantage of the virgin pine forests to the north. He succeeded. Considered an "upstart" by its long-established neighbors, Gulfport grew to fill in an overlooked, sandy, marshy area between Biloxi and Pass Christian. The fact that its founder was a Yankee didn't help matters at first.

However, Jones wasn't the first to think of running a railroad from Jackson south to the harbor opposite Ship Island, William H. Hardy of Meridian voiced the idea some 20 years earlier, and another group had considered the concept in the 1830s, with Mississippi City being the railroad's southern terminus. The Civil War put an end to the original thinkers' plans.

Hardy, who had earlier completed a rail line from Meridian to New Orleans, including a bridge over Lake Pontchartrain (which some had considered impossible at the time), started work on the railroad and even came up with the name of Gulfport for the city, but abandoned the project when government and other problems interfered.

Hardy did live to see Gulfport becoming a reality, though; he died in 1917, some years after Jones started his work in building the city. Gulfport quickly became the coast's primary port, and eventually annexed the two older towns.

Jones, ever ambitious, almost literally built the city of Gulfport. He called for Gulfport to replace Mississippi City as the county seat in 1902, and continually created companies to supply the city's needs. He founded a hotel and bank, donated land for a courthouse, bought up street privileges held by another company and donated them to the city, took personal supervision of the G&SI railroad, and helped organize the Gulfport Yacht Club.

Jones even ramrodded the creation of the harbor at Gulfport and the dredging of the ship channel, and built a trolley line that ran from Biloxi to Pass Christian. Today, CoastTransit Authority's Beachcomber trolley is a symbol of and tribute to Jones' original Beachfront Run.

During his time in Gulfport, Jones poured more than $16 million of his own money into the city's construction and operation.

Gulfport, now home of the Construction Naval Battalion Complex, also served as the site of its predecessor, the U.S. Naval Training Camp. The camp location had started out, not as a government facility, but as the site for the Mississippi Centennial Exposition.

As the city continued to grow, it saw a waxing and waning of its timber shipping industry, the growth of the seafood industry, the construction of the seawall in the 1920s, the four-laning of Hwy. 90, the move of Hancock Bank's main branch from Bay St. Louis to Gulfport in the 1930s, and the establishment of the sand beach in the 1950s.

Today, Gulfport is known for its retail trade, industrial/manufacturing businesses and government installations, as well as its seafood and shipping industries, tourist trade and, most recently, its numerous casi-

Long Beach

Once known as Bear Point, Long Beach has undergone a number of name changes since it was originally mapped out and named by an Englishman in 1774. Joseph Nicholas de L'Adner was the town's earliest resident, having moved ashore after a hurricane destroyed his home on Cat Island. When he and his family moved to the mainland, they built a home at Bear Bayou near Gulf Park

Pitcher's Point, near the Long Beach-Pass Christian border, highlights the city's history as a haven for pirates in former times. Apparently, in the early 1800s a certain Captain Pitcher laid a curse on Pitcher's Point that no one would ever find peace there again. He is said to have uttered the curse while being executed by fire by his own crew for his many atrocities.

Even with the curse on Pitcher's Point, settlers were coming into the area, includ-John Johnson McCaughan, a Yazoo City native, who bought up much of what is now Long Beach, chose the future site of Gulf Park College and built a beautiful home he named "Rosalie". Since McCaughan owned most of the town at the time, and since he did an area and even served as postmaster, the city's next name became Rosalie.

McCaughan is one of the reasons the Friendship Oak at Gulf Park is still alive and well. He liked the tree so much that he fertilized it ... with dead sharks!

The city escaped mostly unscathed from the Civil War and lived in relative quiet until 1870, when the completion of the New Orleans, Mobile and Texas Railroad changed the city's name once again, this time to Scott's Station, for George Scott. who donated the land for a depot. The railroad shifted business activity to the area north of the shore, and birthed the city's truck farming industry.

In 1882, the city acquired its current name, Long Beach, from James and Woods Thomas, brothers who platted the town and named it for the long, sloping Beach

James Thomas contacted an old friend in Tennessee, William J. Quarles, and told him about Long Beach. Quarles visited, liked what he saw, and moved his family, cattle and all, to the town.

He later opened the town's first store, then became Long Beach's first official postmaster. He also started the first school, in his home. Today, Quarles Elementary School honors his contribution to local education.

Quarles is also attributed with the construction of Jeff Davis Avenue, the town's main street and a favorite teenage weekend hangout for many years.

By 1893, tourism was beginning to make an impact on Long Beach, with two waterfront hotels operating. In 1905, the town was incorporated; J.M. Whitten was the first mayor.

The city's truck farming industry, started by Quarles and Thomas, had started to flourish because of the popularity of radishes in saloons. Apparently, the little red vegetables went well with beer. By 1921, though, the industry had reached its peak, and in following years began to decline

Other industries also grew, prospered and waned with the changing times, but the "Friendly City" of Long Beach has maintained its hospitable atmosphere throughout the years.

Pass Christian

Two towns along the Coast have nicknames that have almost supplanted their original names with local residents. Pass Christian and Bay St. Louis are referred to in conversation by most folks as "The Pass" and "The Bay". Pass Christian, though, once was known by another nickname, "The Aristocrat of the Coast".

The home of the South's first and the nation's second yacht club, this resort town first charted Europeans when d'Iberville and Bienville explored the area. The story behind the town's name is that a Christian L'Adner named the north pass of a channel in the Sound after himself, while his brother, Marianne, named the south pass. However, the brothers are not mentioned in d'Iberville's logs. Julius J. Hayden Jr., who wrote a history of the town, feels the name came from Nicholas Christian of New Orleans, a ship's carpenter with a sawmill on Bayou St. John. He apparently kept cattle on Cat Island and later moved there himself, and the pass took on his last name.

The naming of DeLisle, north of Pass Christian, can be accounted for, though. The Comte de L'Isle, one of Bienville's lieutenant's, named a number of the area's landmarks, including Bayou DeLisle. The residential area assumed the name.

The first known resident of Pass Christian was John B. Saucier, who settled there around 1712. Although a few other families moved in later, not much activity was recorded in the town until the 1830s. Then, New Orleanians and upland residents started noticing the town and realized its resort potential. The Pass was incorporated in 1838, and Finley Hiern was the first mayor.

John Henderson, Charles Shipman and David M. Huges developed most of the town's land for summer homes and hotels, which brought in some 1,500 to 2,000 visitors in 1849 and 1850 alone. Henderson Point on the west end of the town is John named after Henderson.

Lucienne Labranche built the city's oldest standing house, Ballymere. Other structures followed, and by 1851, the town had two hotels and some 60 other summer residences.

The Southern Yacht Club, now located in New Orleans, was organized in 1849 at Montgomery's Hotel when a group of New Orleanians came through with their cabin sloop on the way to Mobile. Their host at the hotel promised them a race if they stopped again on the return trip, so they did. The yacht club emerged from the race. Today, the Pass Christian Yacht Club is still a very active member of the local sailing scene.

Between the time of its founding and the Civil War, Pass Christian was the Coast's major trading center. When the war started.

though, the town found itself literally under fire from gunboats in the Sound. In April 1862, 1,200 Union troops invaded The Pass.

After the war, the town's economic emphasis shifted from trading to tourism, with the advent of the railroad in 1870. Now, in addition to New Orleanians and other Gulf area visitors, the town started to see an influx of visitors from the north, and more hotels were built.

By the turn of the century, Pass Christian had become known not only for its tourist attractions, but for the oystering industry and the beautiful homes on Scenic Drive, many of which are still standing despite numerous hurricanes.

President Woodrow Wilson was one of many famous people attracted to the town, and he enjoyed a long stay at the "Dixie White House", one of the town's oldest homes, in 1913. Author Dorothy Dix also alit in The Pass, but she stayed and bought a home.

Although none of the town's hotels, the last of which was destroyed by Hurricane Camille, were ever rebuilt, Pass Christian remains a favorite weekend and summer spot for visitors, as well as home for its population of 6,000. Its annual Mardi Gras parade and Seafood Festival are two of the area's biggest tourist draws, and the Yacht Club hosts two regattas each year, the Knost and the Frostbite. The Garden Club's annual Spring Pilgrimage and Arts and Craft Festival in March gives visitors a chance to step back into the town's splendid ante-bellum past, and the Pass Christian Isles Golf Club hosts an Italian Open tournament each spring that attracts serious and not-soserious golfers from all over the U.S.

Choctaws already living

While it is now the Hancock County seat and has been a popular watering hole for New Orleanians since the 18th century, Bay St. Louis was sparsely populated for many years after its initial discovery. Development in the are took place primarily along the Pearl River area, with the biggest settlements Gainesville Pearlington.

In 1721, a Madame de Mezieres sent some 30 people to the area of what is now Felicity Street to settle a 17,000 acre land grant she received from King Louis

After the French and Indian War, the Bay St. Louis settlement was given to England in 1763. Following the American Revolution, Spain was given the area in Thomas Shields, who received a Spanish land grant on the shore of the bay almost a century after Bienville's landing, began cultivating in 1800, and his grant became known as Shieldsborough. The town was originally incorporated under that name in 1858. However, the town was again incorporated in 1875, this time as Bay St. Louis.

By that time, the town had been in the United States for 64 years, Hancock County for 63, and the state of Mississippi for 58 years. Bay St. Louis, at the time of incorporation under its present name, already had a good reputation as a resort town. The Civil War had but little effect on the town's existence.

Since Louisiana had outlawed dueling around 1870, Bay St. Louis became a popular site for New Orleanians with quarrels to shoot it out. The town as the location of Mississippi's last documented duel, which occurred in April of 1874.

Bay St. Louis has, almost from its start, been a popular weekend and summer haunt for New Orleanians, dueling and non-dueling. By the turn of the century, the town boasted several hotels and summer "cottages", as well as a health resort, an opera house and a vineyard. Even today, many visitors are from the neighboring state, as well as many transplanted resi-

Bay St. Louis was the site of the first Hancock bank, founded in 1899 as Hancock County Bank, and the location of one of the coast's oldest newspapers, The Sea Coast Echo, established in 1891. Since its beginning, the Echo has missed publishing only two issues. The Bay also can claim the coast's first seawall.

Today, Bay St. Louis remains a favorite tourist spot, and has gained a reputation as an art and antiques

The city's annual Art Tour attracts thousands of visitors each fall, and new galleries and antique stores have recently sprouted like flow-

Waveland

Waveland was a part of Shieldsborough until March 1888, when it was chartered and citizens elected L.H. Fairchild as its first mayor. An established summer retreat, Waveland is populated by descendants of the original French and Spanish settlers, as well as residents who have moved from New Orleans and other metropolitan areas.

The town's first major business was Ulman's Woolen Mill in the 1880s. Sheep raising was a big business on the coast at the time, and the shepherds would come down from the area north of the Sound once a year to trade wool and hides in Bay St. Louis and Pass Christian. When the sheep raising industry fell after a few years, Ulman's Woolen Mill also died.

One of Waveland's claims to fame was the "Pirate House", built in 1802 by a New Orleanian of dubious repute. Some believed him to be pirate Jean Lafitte, but historic records indicate the house was owned only by a close business associate who helped Lafitte ply the slave trade in secret. The house was destroyed in Camille, but its story lives on in local his-

Centuries-old live oaks provide both a frame and a gateway for the Coast's long history.

Today, Waveland is the site of Buccaneer State Park, probably named for Lafitte and his confederates. The park is an ideal campsite and picnic ground, facing the beach in Waveland. The park's Wave Pool attracts visitors of all ages.

A short distance west of Waveland is NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center, where shuttle engines are tested and many important government subcontractors are located. Stennis' Visitors Center provides a look at the nation's space program ... past, present and future.

North of Waveland, near Kiln (named for the ovens where the original French settlers burned charcoal to sell), is the Stennis International Airport. The airport includes a landing site for private and charter planes, and has seen a major increase in activity with the advent of casinos on the Diamondhead was founded in 1970 as a resort community whose name and street names were based on Hawaii's Diamond Head. The area didn't really take off for several years, though, and once it did, it was seen primarily as a retirement community.

Diamondhead

All that has changed, and now Diamondhead is known as one of the fastest growing communities on the coast. Its population, at last count, rity staff, yacht club, country exceeds Pass Christian's, and the area has its own shoprants, fire department, secu-club (with two golf courses), recreation centers with pools ping center, hotel, restau- (one with a ball field), and small craft airport.

Community Matters

2002 Report to the Community

Is United Way effective? You bet it is!

Over the last 25 years, I have had the opportunity to become intimately involved with three United Way organizations — Las Vegas, Atlantic City, and the Gulf Coast. Over those years, I have found that the United Way is quite unique, and operates entirely differently than other agencies that do good in the community. I thought I would take a moment in this letter to explain exactly what makes the United Way unique:

1. United Way Assesses Community Needs

The United Way is the only major organization that on a regular basis formally assesses the needs of the whole community. The United Way of South Mississippi has over 70 volunteers who meet throughout the year to review the community needs on specific areas:

- Meeting Basic Needs
- Strengthening Individuals and Families
- Promoting Self Sufficiency
- Nurturing Children and Youth

Each agency's program is evaluated on how it serves these community needs. This evaluation is then translated into the allocation process so that the United Way can invest donations to best satisfy these community needs

2. United Way Mobilizes Community Support to Do Good

Through its large volunteer organization, the United Way is a true "community based" organization. Through its payroll deduction program, the working employees, many who actually receive benefits of the United Way, gain knowledge of the organization, and realize how donating their dollars makes a major difference in the community. At the senior volunteer level, community leaders are involved in not only raising money, but also determining how that money is to be spent in the most efficient manner. In addition, there are many mid-level volunteers who work to help raise the money and work on the committees of the United Way to help set its future direction. It is estimated that in the last campaign, around 400 people were involved in one way or another in the United Way

This publication produced as a community service by

3. United Way Leverages Donations

United Way's commitment to improving the quality of life for the people in our community is unwavering. Although you may think of them as only a fundraiser, United Way is so much more. They are a unique community-based organization with a mission to lead the way to solutions for a better community. United Way accomplishes this by providing community leadership, organizing solutions to pressing community problems and leveraging funds raised for greatest possible impact .Through corporate contributions to match employee contributions, through corporate match challenges, through special events, and through the writing of grants, the United Way leverages its basic donations to create maximum good for the community.

4. United Way Tackles New Problems

Because the United Way has its fingers on the community pulse, it is the first group aware of problems that arise in the community that no one else is aware of. They are then able to react and address these problems, even providing special funds when necessary. There are very few other organizations that do this.

5. United Way is Efficient

A general rule of thumb is that a charitable organization should not spend more than 30% of its donations for administration and marketing. In fact, the United Way spends less than 14% of the direct funds it raises for administration and marketing, and when you include the total amount of money raised by the United Way through its leveraging actions, this percentage reduces to a very low total overhead.

Is United Way effective?
You bet it is!
Will the United Way be effective in the future?

Yes, but only if everyone understands how important the United Way is to our community, and gives of their time and pocketbook to continue to make it the most successful community based charitable organization in the country.

UNITED WAY ANNUAL REPORT

From the Executive Director

What matters?

By Donna Alexander

Each one of us could respond with a variety of answers – family, education, safety, a stronger, healthier community. Our community has responded to this question by means of a community assessment conducted by United Way of South Mississippi. The assessment report is complete and we now have answers to

The assessment report is complete and we now have answers to What Matters from residents of Harrison, Hancock and Pearl River counties. Those answers challenge us to focus the resources and efforts of our communities to address critical issues to achieve results. Because RESULTS MATTER.

How do we measure progress in addressing community priorities and achieving the desired results? We can no longer measure results by how much money is raised or distributed. We must look at the overall impact in specific priority areas and the lives and the communities that are improved because of our efforts. Community impact translates into RESULTS.

United Way is in the business of impact – improving lives by mobilizing communities to create sustained changes in community conditions. Whether it's nurturing children and youth, promoting self-sufficiency, strengthening individuals and families or meeting basic needs, United Way collaborates with scores of community partners to identify and address critical issues to achieve the desired results.

Just as each of us invests in our own future, United Way invests in the future of our communities. This investment includes every resource available – people, knowledge, relationships, technology and money. United Way also provides leadership, acting as a convener, catalyst and a partner with business, industry and government as we address present concerns and anticipate emerging issues. United Way is recognized as the trusted partner of those who strive to make our communities better.

When we join forces with others, our contributions have greater impact. Your United Way contribution or investment, because it is magnified by the investment of others, has the power to bring about changes that matter in our community — changes that produce RESULTS, and that's WHAT MATTERS.

To achieve those results, we will need serious, sustained, well-led collaborations that will change people's lives in meaningful ways by changing the ways our communities work. Those collaborations must be built on the hard, factual answers to questions such as how come what we desire for our community doesn't already exist?

United Way's aspires to work at the community level, in partner-ship with and on behalf of the community. We know that the definition of "community" changes depending on the issues being given attention. "The community" can be defined as those who are directly affected by a problem or issue, those who can contribute to changing the situation and others concerned with the well-being of that community. "The community" may be people who are defined by common geography or by common concerns about an issue or problem.

United Way joins people and resources to improve the communities in which we live, work, and raise our families. United Way continues to increase our investment in our communities so that lives are improved. That's WHAT MATTERS.

South Mississippi invests in what matters through United Way

Delivering results right here at home

hroughout Harrison, Hancock and Pearl River counties, United Way of South Mississippi invests in 70 programs of 40 member agencies to provide services to families, children and adolescents, the elderly and handicapped citizens. Program services include emergency assistance, youth development, disaster services, counseling and health activities.

Following each agency's description of its mission and services, you will find UWSM's investments for 2003 listed by the funded programs. Campaign dollars raised in 2002 are the source for UWSM's 2003 investments in programs and agencies.

What your investment returns to our community

Through United Way, you invest in our South Mississippi community's future. You support United Way's efforts to generate visible results in four critical impact areas. These areas and the amount invested into each are listed below:

areas. These areas and the amount invested into each are listed below:

• Meeting Basic Needs

$434.222

• Nurturing Children and Youth $381,010

• Promoting Self-sufficiency $259.419

• Strengthening individuals and families $220,088

To ensure your community investment pays real dividends, United Way of South Mississippi monitors the success of each familied program, measuring results and linking progress toward broad community Visions.

On these pages, we are providing a list of the many programs and service agencies in Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River counties that receive funding because of your United Way investment. We are also providing the specific amounts invested by United Way in each program and agency during our 2003 fiscal year, April 2003 through March 2004.

Without exceptional volunteers, none of what United Way of South Mississippi

Without exceptional volunteers, none of what United Way of South Mississippi accomplishes would be possible. We hope you take a few moments to read through this Report and see how you and your friends and neighbors are working to advance the quality of life for those who live and work in our South Mississippi community.

eague We honor the hundreds of individuals and businesses who led the way of caring in South Mississippi this year to help us reach our goal. Each year we have shown an increase in leadership givers and this year was no exception. Also showing a dramatic increase this year was the Alexis de Tocqueville Society. This group has increased 300% from 3 givers in 1998 to 12 in 2002. This year alone the de Tocqueville Society increased 100% with 6 new members. We couldn't have done it without each and every one of you, thanks for caring about what matters in your community!

Federations must include details of the membership dues and/or service charges received by the federation from the charitable organizations participating as members. The information should be clearly presented to allow the general public to understand the amounts raised, the source of contributions, the costs of fundraising, and how costs are recovered from donations.
